THE PEOPLE'S CONVENTION.

In point of numbers, representation, character and enthusiasm, the Alberta Liberal convention in Calgary this week surpassed all previous gatherings of the kind in this province, and in the West, and has probably not been surpassed by any provincial political convention ever held in Canada. It was an Alberta convention in name and fact. Alberta was represented, all sections and all interests and will be represented. Delegates were present from every provincial constituency, and besides the delegates were scores of prominent Liberals from all parts of the Province, the convention being open to all who chose to attend. It was a splendid gathering, splendid in point of numbers and thoroughly representative of Alberta's vast and varied interests. The farmer, the rancher, the professional man, the miner, the mechanic, the artisan, the merchant, the manufacturer, all were there. The leaders of political thought there met, deliberated and discussed with those of less conspicuous vantage of life, measures for the progress and development of their common Province. It was a people's convention. The people made it what it was, controlled it, determined its character and shape of its course. The attendance at the convention was the best practical proof that could be asked or given that the Liberal party is of the people, exists for the people and relies upon the people.

The purpose of the convention was to arrange a basis of organization for the coming Federal general elections, and the dominant note was enthusiastic confidence in the Government under which Canada has prospered during the past sixteen years, and the policy by which that prosperity has been induced and encouraged. Able in the organization affected and in the spirit which dominated the convention, the Liberal party is of the people, exists for the people and relies upon the people.

THE MONEY MARKET.

Mayor Johnson, of Winnipeg, who went to Europe some time ago to look into conditions, has returned without trying to sell Winnipeg bonds, owing to the unsatisfactory condition of the market. As Winnipeg must have money, at no very distant date, however, it is reasonable to suppose that Mr. Johnson also saw signs of a betterment in the market in the near future. Otherwise, he would probably have been induced to dispose of the bonds even at an unusually high rate, rather than continue borrowing from the banks at the high interest rate. While, therefore the failure to sell Winnipeg bonds offers testimony to the presently adverse condition of the market, the fact that the present prices were not accepted nor considered may be construed as an indication that prices are expected to be more favorable in the reasonably near future.

Winnipeg's mayor appears to have reached the same conclusion as a London press correspondent, who a few days ago warned Canadian municipalities that too liberal offers of bonds was certain to depress the market for them, and might even set adrift adversely the credit of Canada herself. More than this, the information was conveyed that our present method of offering our goods was not likely to secure the best price, and that we should appear less anxious to get rid of our bonds if we hope to get value for them. The warning appears reasonable. There are several methods of offering goods for sale, and the man who displays his wares on the street corner is likely to create the impression that they are not of much value. So Mr. Johnson appears to have concluded, and he is restrained from "cheapening" Winnipeg city bonds by proffering them in a market which did not appear to properly estimate the worth of such securities.

If, on the other hand, it may be assumed that a promise of better weather also convinced the wisdom of holding the bonds for the present, this may be due to the decreased volume of Canadian municipal securities offered recently on the British market. While the British investor is well aware that Canadian cities need money, and are prepared to sell bonds at reasonable prices to obtain money, and while the ill-advantaged haste or methods of some Canadian cities may have exaggerated the investor's opinion of how badly we need money, the fact remains that Canadian cities generally have not been hawking their bonds about the streets during the past few months. Through in some instances hard pressed, they have generally faced the situation patiently and wisely, and have preferred to pay high rates of interest on temporary loans than to offer their bonds in a market which would not at best pay a fair price for them. As a result the volume of Canadian securities offered on the London market cannot be compared to that of, say, last year, or to that which would have offered had the market been less discouraging.

The effect of this course is bound to make itself felt in time—and the time should not be long. To financiers who have hoped to reap undue rewards from the financial necessities of Canadian cities, the retention of their bonds should make it clear that these cities do not intend to be swindled if they can prevent it, and that they are prepared to adopt some pretty drastic means in trying to prevent it. And to the financier who seeks security before profit, the fact that our bonds are not offering should bring assurance that our cities are not only absolutely solvent, but that we are not pressed to the point of sacrifice for want of funds. The temporary absence of Canadian municipal bonds from the market should teach the financial sharks that the Canadian cities are not their victims, and should confirm the confidence of any doubting investor in the integrity of our credit.

The purpose could be better accomplished if means were devised for securing concerted action by Canadian cities in the marketing of securities. There is a broad field for municipal statehood in devising a plan whereby our cities could co-operate both in withholding bonds when the bond market is weak, and of handling them in such manner that the best prices might be secured for them when offered.

BIG LUMBERMAN APPROVES INFLUX

Of Asiatics—Alexander McLean Prefers Oriental to White Labor.

Winnipeg, October 25.—Alexander McLean, a big mill owner in Quebec and British Columbia, is a visitor in the city. Mr. McLean's home is in Buckingham, Quebec, where he owns two large saw mills and a pulp mill, with a considerable employed in these mills, as well as in the forest. There are four hundred and fifty men employed in these mills, as well as in the forest. He is a man of great energy and is a great believer in the value of the Asiatic element in the woods during the winter.

In British Columbia, Mr. McLean owns mills in Bannock, a town about five miles from Vancouver, situated immediately on the harbor. He has employed about a hundred and fifty men, while in many of the mills for the company in the bush.

Asiatic Problem.—When asked by a reporter Mr. McLean gave some very interesting facts in regard to the employment of Asiatics on the western coast. He has made careful observations during his visit to the coast from his home in the east, and the opinions of such a large employer of labor are highly regarded.

"Yes," said Mr. McLean, "we employ Chinese, Japanese and Hindus, in our mills. We are forced to employ this outside labor because the very little common white labor to be had, and what there is, is not content with the low wages. What I mean is that they will work a little while, just long enough for us to get them broken in to their work, and then they will move on to get better jobs. In the other hand we have the Oriental, they will stay and work for us."

"We find we have no trouble. They are living in houses that we have built for them, pay their rent regularly, and usually the Chinese and Japanese are more content than the common white laborers. We have Chinese and Japanese in our mills. Some of them have been here for seven years, some of them having been here for ten years. They are not content to take their places and show some consideration for their employer. White men are holding all the important and high wage positions in our mills. These men are all right—they are the skillful laborers—but it is the common white laborers that we have that are no good."

The Chinese supply necessary labor which I could not get white men to do. Nor are we the only ones dependent upon this foreign labor. The Chinese are well suited for laundry work and other things which a white man will not take. They are not content to come from one section only. Scarcely people are the attention in the west, and they have a certain number of these people enter the country."

Rudyard Kipling's Views.—Rudyard Kipling speaks about putting white people into the country and I agree with him. We all want to see this great country built up. If the idea of the settlement of the Dominion House from British Columbia and the labor carried out, our mills would probably have to shut down and in any case would be seriously crippled. This applies not only to the saw mills, but also to the lumber and the saw mill industry."

"I see that going to waste upon the trees, and it would have been sent down through this province if any body had been willing to pick it up. Reading the paper in the library at the period when everyone was calling for labor. You can see from this how anxious the white laborers are to help solve the problem. It is not so much the Chinese or Japanese that the objection is made to, but it is laborers from any country. It is a kind of selfish combine upon the part of the unionists to exclude others. The mere fact that they can make a better point in attacking Asiatics and according to do. I am thoroughly convinced that countries were sent from British Columbia and San Francisco so as to bring Canada into the difficulties created by the immigration. The manufacturers of Canada should request and insist upon a law being passed whereby the manufacture of goods should be protected, and also the employers who have been satisfied for years to be in their employment, from being disturbed by paid agitators who come over from the United States and create dissension between employer and workmen."

Come Before House.—"There is no question but that this labor problem will be brought up in the house during the coming session, if they don't make proper provision for a supply of labor they will retard the development of the country, not only in British Columbia but in all the northwest. For the people in this country have got to get lumber in British Columbia. The settler will have to have houses, and what will provide the material to build them. It is a question which affects the whole of Canada, and not merely one section of the people."

But He Knows Nothing of Canada.

London, Oct. 25.—Walter Buncraft, M.P., speaks at London tonight if we depended on Canada for wheat, as some British capitalists would see what might happen there at present, because sixty per cent of the wheat in Canada could not be utilized as a consequence of a wet harvest.

THOMAS A. ORAM WAS MURDERED FOR MONEY

Ex-Prince Albert Resident Victim of Fast Murder in Montana—Sought for His Life.

Winnipeg, October 25.—Further particulars have been received of the cold-blooded murder of T. A. Oram in Montana a few days ago. The victim was born in Fort Gary, six years ago and lived a few years here, leaving while quite young for Prince Albert. He resided there for eighteen years, being for eight years proprietor of the Queen's Hotel in partnership with his brother-in-law, Geo. Stalker, who has gone to accompany the body back to Prince Albert. Oram was last seen in May this year for Minneapolis, accompanied by his wife. He left her there at her home and went on west, having no point in view. He wrote to his wife up in three weeks ago, at which time he was clocking in on hotel, but the point was not given. W. P. Jackson, of this city, who is also brother-in-law of the deceased, received word from Mrs. Oram today from Great Falls. It reads as follows: "The body of my husband is at Stanford, Mont. 80 miles by stage. From Lewistown, and that it is ready for shipment back to Prince Albert. She will await the arrival of the body. Geo. Stalker, and accompanying the remains are also this morning. Sheriff Martin instructed Deputy Whiteford of Stanford, to spare no effort or expense to capture the murderers. This evening the sheriff left for Stanford to take personal charge of the investigation, and in the morning County Attorney Ayers will go out to give what assistance he can."

Murdered for Money.—Lewistown, Mont., Oct. 25.—T. A. Oram, an employee on the Billings and Northern railway construction near Stanford, was found murdered near that place early this morning. He was found slain in a most cold-blooded manner by two men, whose motive for the crime was the desire to obtain a little money in the victim's possession. The murderers have not been apprehended. Oram had recently arrived from Minneapolis and had secured employment at one of the camps near Stanford. Letters found among his effects show that he had long been in poor health, and it appears that he had been planning to go to Great Falls to secure a hospital. The letters also show that he has a wife in Minneapolis. A day or two ago Oram drove his goods and went to Stanford, saying that he would return to camp where he was employed. At that time he had in his possession a little money, a watch and some other jewelry. This morning his dead body was found on the prairie, about five miles from the camp at which he was employed. He was stabbed in the body several times, his throat had been cut and the arms in both of his wrists had been severed. His money, his watch, and all other articles of value that were upon his person when he left Stanford were missing. It was apparent from the condition of the ground surrounding the body that he was assaulted by two men. He fought bravely, but was overpowered. The distance for a distance of 100 yards from the prairie, and then exhumed by the coroner and the body was found on the prairie. As soon as the coroner arrived, the body was taken to the hospital. Sheriff Martin instructed Deputy Whiteford of Stanford, to spare no effort or expense to capture the murderers. This evening the sheriff left for Stanford to take personal charge of the investigation, and in the morning County Attorney Ayers will go out to give what assistance he can."

MR. FABIAN WARE PRAISES CANADA

Editor of London Morning Post
Expresses Himself on Imperial Problems.

Winnipeg, Oct. 25.—Fabian Ware of London, England, the editor of the Morning Post, is a visitor in the city at the present time. He is widely known throughout the United Kingdom as a journalist and as a man who is thoroughly conversant with current affairs. The Morning Post is the great rival of the Times and is one of the largest and most thoughtful of English newspapers. Recently editing this paper Mr. Ware has held many responsible official positions, spending four years in South Africa, where he was director of education and member of the legislative council. This visit to Canada is made in no official capacity, but merely to observe the conditions in this country. He is accompanied by his wife and will remain a day or two in the city.

"This country is very marvelous," said Mr. Ware, "and what I wish is that all English people who are interested in imperial questions would come and see it for themselves. I had read about Canada and was under the impression that I knew something of its great possibilities, but one who has not seen Canada can have the least idea of what these resources really are. I shall try and persuade all my friends when I go back to come and see things for themselves. When we started across the continent everyone told us that we wouldn't find one moment of the journey uninteresting and we hardly believed them. But I have found that what they have said is true. It is marvelous, marvelous. Much of my time has been spent in seeing various people, but I managed to snatch a week's holiday in the Rockies, and I only wish that people who spend so much money going to Egypt would go there for a holiday. I suppose the reason why they don't is because they have no idea that the scenery is so splendid, and they fear that the hotel accommodations will not be good. But really the hotels are excellent—at least along the main line."

When questioned in regard to the immigration problem, Mr. Ware was especially upon such a short acquaintance with the country. "Every one," said he, "who is so heavily interested in the question as I am, will be delighted to hear that there is an increase in immigration and that the increase is in the direction of bringing in British settlers. 'Is there,' he questioned, 'any solution of the problem in Vancouver except to bring in white laborers in increasing numbers?' One cannot help, somehow feeling indignant that the white working man is not allowed to know of the openings in Vancouver, while the Japanese who are allowed to be able to find out these openings for themselves. My reason for choosing Canada for my holiday is that my paper has devoted great attention to imperial questions and I want to learn for myself what really are the problems of imperial relationship in this country. So far, all that I have learned is distinctly encouraging and leads me to wonder whether it may be Canada and not Great Britain who will take the lead in the solution of the problem of imperial unity."

Responsible for Essex Disaster.
Toronto, Oct. 25.—Justice Riddell handed down judgment this morning in the case of Rex vs. the Michigan Central, imposing a fine of $25,000 as penalty for their culpable neglect in the Essex Centre dynamite explosion, which caused two deaths and many thousands dollars loss. In passing sentence the judge said: "It was clearly the duty of the railway to take all due care of the lives and property of others no matter what the cost. The company took no care whatever to have its employees instructed in the handling of such explosives and the knowledge of this kind does not come by instinct. It is my firm conviction that the best way to prevent similar accidents is to make it more costly for the railway companies to violate the law than to observe it. They are fined on the second count that they did not take reasonable precautions. If the sum of $25,000 is paid to the sheriff of Essex within thirty days the attorney will be requested to direct that no further proceedings be taken."

Edmonton's Banking Institutions

THE NORTHERN BANK OF CANADA.

Among the banking institutions of Canada there is none more closely allied to the spirit of the West, or more distinctively western in its aims and progress than the Northern Bank. The local branch of this vigorous young banking house was established here in March, 1903, with Mr. L. N. McCarthy as its first manager. The bank secured a good central site on the corner of Queen's avenue, opposite the Bulletin building. The structure already there was refitted for occupancy by the bank, the long, spacious apartment being equipped with antique oak desks and counters with the high brim railings customary for the protection of the various departments.

In November, 1906, Mr. McCarthy was succeeded as manager by Mr. A. Scott, the present capable executive head of the bank here. With Mr. Scott are associated a staff including C. H. L. Smith, W. H. Shanks, S. Cowan and Mr. Michie.

The bank, which has only been two years in existence, has made a record as general manager of the new bank. Financial Statement. By its original charter, the authorized capital of the bank was fixed at $2,000,000, one-half of which was offered to the public at a premium of 10 per cent. The amount was very quickly subscribed, and in a short time the bank had almost $200,000 of paid up capital. The provisional directors of the bank at this time were: James H. Ashberry, Sir Daniel H. McMillan, K.C.M.G., D.C. Cameron, George W. Croft, H. M. (now Chief Justice) Howell, Captain William Robinson and Frederick W. Stewart. On the 2nd of October, 1906, the certificate authorizing the bank to begin business and to take notes was issued by the treasury board at Ottawa, and on the 6th day of November, 1906, the bank opened its doors for business with a subscribed capital of $1,000,000 and a paid up capital of $666,250, on the first day of January, 1907, the paid up capital had been increased to $977,474, and at the first meeting of the shareholders, the following board of directors was appointed: Sir Daniel H. McMillan, K.C.M.G., president, Captain William Robinson, vice-president, A. J. Adamson, M.P., James H.

NORTHWEST INDIAN WORK.

Churches Want Government to Undertake Education, While They Will Look After Religious Side.

Toronto, Oct. 25.—A comprehensive report of all Northwest Indian work, the outcome of months of investigation with other denominations, and their negotiations with the government to induce them to assume as their own full charge the work of education, leaving to the churches the religious care only, was discussed at some length at the half-yearly session of the general board of missions for the Church of England today, presided over by the Archbishop of Toronto. The report started that the existing system had been a partial failure and was becoming too onerous for the churches with their rapidly growing work, while Indian children are undoubtedly worse off than the natives. A boarding and industrial school system on account of the number of deaths have been withholding their children from the schools because of the unsanitary conditions of the buildings. The Northwest clergymen complained the religion upon the school because of deaths, declaring that the proportion of deaths was greater. The statistics furnished were widely and inaccurately misquoted, but Hon. S. H. Blake proclaimed that the reflecting judgment must be given to support the present inefficient supervision and overmanaging early staffs.

FIRST LONG SENTENCE.

Imposed By Judge Beck—Albert Malcolm Gets Two Years For Attempted Train Wreck.

Bulletin Special. Red Deer, Oct. 25.—In the supreme court here today in the case of Rex vs. Babychew, the prisoner pleaded guilty to forging and passing cheques in the name of H. Babychew, at Red Deer, a few weeks ago. As he had spent some time in jail, and as he escaped with the result of a driving bout and also as he had returned the money to those who had cashed the forged cheques, he was let off with five months in the Calgary penitentiary. In the case of Rex vs. Malcolm, Albert Malcolm, a youth of twenty-one, apparently a work-mind, was charged with passing a cheque on the C. & E. track near Hinton. The action was found the lie in the dock, and ran across Malcolm on the track shortly afterwards. When asked about it, he said that no one had been hurt anyway. This was the only direct evidence. The jury found him guilty, and though his counsel, Mr. Moore, preferred the plea that the prisoner was insane, The judge did not entertain the objection, but sentenced Malcolm to two years in the penitentiary.

Gas Works on Fire.

Chattanooga, Tenn., October 25.—The plant of the Chattanooga Gas Company is on fire and burning fiercely. In response to calls, several ambulances have gone to the scene. There are three injured and two or three persons are reported missing. The cause of the explosion was a tank in the purifying room.

Operates Back to Work.

THE NORTHERN BANK, CORNER OF JASPER AND QUEEN AVENUES.

of growth, having established about five hundred already. Owing to the vast increase in the domestic and foreign trade of the Dominion of Canada, and the very full exploitation of the banking capital of the country, it is felt that the average of this that there was an immense and a splendid opportunity for a new bank organized and business along conservative lines which would employ and save the greatest talent.

At that time there was no chartered bank in Canada with a head office west of the city of Hamilton. Out of a condition of things which it was felt should not prevail in view of the great development in all branches of trade, and the enormous increase in population which was then in progress in the Canadian West, the country was being opened up at an unequalled pace by the influx of settlers and the construction of railway lines.

The auspicious nature of the opportunity was so apparent that the Northern Bank was projected with a list of gentlemen constituting to an organization who were representative of the different and most important branches of industrial, commercial, manufacturing and professional interests of the country. These gentlemen were well known throughout the entire Northwest of Canada and were in every case largely interested in the prosperity and future. They were of close touch with the active trade interests of the country, and very well qualified to give the best advice on all matters of business that might arise in the future. Arrangements were also made with Mr. J. W. DeCoursey O'Reilly, at that time manager of the Northern branch of the Bank of Montreal, to ly obtainable by any teacher. Much more on need not be a lawyer to understand or interpret these for the children.

Expressing his intention of not going into details in the work, but instead touching upon the landmarks of history in the West's development, the speaker continued. The first period of our western history extended, he said, from 1870 to 1879. It was in the year 1870 that a charter was granted to the Company of Gentlemen Adventurers trading into Rupert's Land, and the regime of this unique company extended to 1879.

The limits of its jurisdiction were not very clearly defined, but Rupert's Land was supposed to be the land drained by the streams flowing into the Hudson Bay. For one hundred years the company practically limited its operations to this district, but then stimulated by the opposition of the Montreal traders and the Northwest company they gradually extended their work westward.

Hudson Bay Company.
The position of the Hudson's Bay company might be compared to that of the East India company, as lords proprietary of the country they had full privileges of governing, establishing tribunals and administering the law under the sovereignty of England. As the population was sparse and the company's forts scattered, there was really little constitutional government under that regime.

In 1870 all this territory became the property of Canada. Provision had been made for its acquisition in the British North America act, section 146. In the first Dominion Parliament of Education High School, this paper, on Constitutional Government was one of the features of the convention. It is a native of Southport, Ont., received the degrees of B.A. and M.A. from Toronto University. He is also a graduate in law, President of the Provincial Association of teachers in Alberta and a past-president of the Northern Alberta Teachers' Association. Came to Edmonton from Ontario Normal College in 1906. Presently Principal of High School here when Principal John Ross was appointed Commissioner of Education in the Yukon.

ment held after Confederation there was passed an address setting out the Imperial reasons the need of extending the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific—reasons which the speaker felt unnecessary to repeat but which had since been realized.

The British government took up the matter, and it was decided that because of the proprietary rights of the Hudson's Bay company an act should be passed in England providing for the surrender of these rights. This, known as the Rupert's Land act, was passed in 1868, providing for the surrender on terms to be arranged by the Imperial and Dominion governments and the company.

Dominion Purchases West.
The Dominion consequently in 1869 purchased the rights of the company. The consideration of the purchase of 200,000 pounds, the company being allowed to retain land about all their lands, amounting in all to about 200,000 acres, and in addition to this one-twentieth of the land that should be later surveyed for settlement.

In 1870 an order in council was passed by the Imperial Government declaring the union of Rupert's Land and the Northwest Territories to the Dominion of Canada. The Dominion government anticipating this act had already passed an act providing for the provincial government of these western territories. A lieutenant governor was provided for, with a council to aid him in making laws.

This was never put into operation as the first rebellion broke out in 1869, then in 1870 the Manitoba act was passed, creating Manitoba a province, giving it a constitution and a provincial status in the Dominion. Since then Manitoba has abolished the legislative council.

It was provided in this act that the governor of Manitoba should be commissioned to be governor for the remaining territories of the West, and that he should have a council to assist him.

Controlled From Winnipeg.
From this period, 1870, until 1873, when the Northwest act was passed by the Mackenzie administration the Territories were under the control of Manitoba's governor and a special council, their powers being defined from time to time by the Dominion government. In any case they were never to go beyond section 72 of the British North America act. In 1873 the Northwest Territories were given a resident governor with five members appointed as a council. It was provided that from time to time as the population grew, other members should be elected and when the number rose to the number of 21 the council should be abolished and the legislature take its place. Amendments to this act were passed in 1876 and 1877. The lieutenant governor said that his council were given jurisdiction over the administration of justice, the collection of revenues, the maintenance of prison, property and civil rights and the establishment of public schools.

Under this act the West was governed down to 1880 by the old Northwest council, a body of nine members elected and others appointed outright. For the first decade the population did not increase greatly, so there were few additions to the council. The logic of the C. P. R. route running north to Edmonton was responsible for bringing many settlers to the Saskatchewan valley.

The first territorial governor was the Hon. David Laird. The next of government was held variously at Swan River, at Battleford and Regina. It was established at Regina in 1883. In 1886 as the council had increased to 21 a change became necessary.

Struggle in Council.
The council continued in existence of 1873 was passed. With the lieutenant governor an advisory council of four members was appointed to have control of financial matters. This regime continued from 1886 to 1891, and marks an important period in the development of the government of the West.

Harmony did not characterize the earlier meetings of this council. It was in fact a struggle for responsible government that those days saw. The lieutenant governor, who had a seat in the assembly, got into opposition with his advisory council, and would not yield them the control of financial matters, to which they felt themselves entitled.

As a result of the struggle the governor, Hon. Joseph Ross, resigned and the Dominion government had to intervene. Henceforth the lieutenant governor sat apart from the assembly, and the control of financial matters was given to the assembly.

From 1891 down to 1906 the administration of the Northwest Territories was not unlike that of the other provinces. Since then the governor resigned the leader of the government as a premier and called on him to form a cabinet. The members of the council were not called ministers, but commissioners, as the Territories had not full provincial status, yet for all practical purposes their position was similar to that of ministers.

Act of 1897.
Their position was defined more particularly by the act of parliament (96-1 Vic.) introduced in 1897 by the Hon. Mr. Sifton, minister of the interior. The bill was planned to give the people of the Territories a form of government still more like that of the provinces.

"They will have ministers," it provided, "who are responsible to the legislature, and the rules and precedents which apply to the provincial governments will apply to the Territories." This was a definition of the power which the Territorial commissioners had been exercising under an unwritten law since 1891.

Premier Haultain, who was the first premier, was at the head of affairs from 1897 to 1906, and in this connection deserved the highest praise for the way in which he filled his place, which for the last ten years was practically that of a dictator.

Party politics were not introduced in this assembly. Yet now say that party government is the only practical way of ruling a country.

Autonomy Act of 1905.
To come down to the act of 1905. While the acts creating Alberta and Saskatchewan into provinces may be regarded as the crowning event, autonomy in the West has been a gradual evolution. This has been a sound policy, and in adopting it the Dominion government was no doubt guided by the extreme difficulties which Manitoba had to contend.

In naming provinces they were changed rather in name than in fact, as they had previously been named to provincial rights. They were, however, given increased rights in dealing with companies and railroads, accorded a large revenue and the power and dignity that goes with the name.

They took over the provincial constitution as outlined in sections 91, 92 and 93 of the British North America act. The legislation upon this matter is so recent," said the speaker, "that it is familiar to all my hearers and it would be out of order to take up time in a discussion of it."

Provision had already been made in 1869, after the rebellion, by the Imperial government for representation of the Territories in the Federal House. Alberta and Saskatchewan were each given four members, which was to continue until the census of 1906. It was then readjusted and in the next election Alberta will return 7 members and Saskatchewan 10.

"It is but one year," concluded the speaker, "since Alberta was raised to provincial status, when the ship of state was turned over to Premier Balfour, who has since then guided it admirably, free from rocks and shoals."

burns either wood or coal with equal facility. The change in the Penn Esther from coal to wood may be made in thirty seconds. The only alteration necessary to burn wood consists in removing the lining of one end of the fire box and inserting a perforated, cast iron wood-peg, which is supplied free with all Penn Esther Ranges. When this end lining is removed, the Penn Esther will burn a stick of wood 24 inches long. The advantages of this are obvious in country sections where wood is extensively used for fuel.

"A Man's Wardrobe reflects himself—his personality, taste, discrimination."

The man who aims to appear well-dressed exercises great care in the selection of his suits. He has learned that it pays to look into their pedigrees. That subtle, almost intangible sympathy between man and dress is understood.

The inevitable choice of the man who seeks appropriate things in dress is studied by the buyer who selects the fabrics, and by the designers who create the distinctive charm of Semi-ready Tailoring.

System and organization make it possible to sell fine clothes at $18 and $20—and on to $30 values—at $5 to $10 a suit less than you pay for like quality.
